Peak Security's PPS team is lead by Michael Pietragallo. Michael is a Pittsburgh native with a degree in Psychology from the University of Pittsburgh. He served in the United States Navy as a Naval Flight Officer. Michael has worked for the world's premier private contract security firms including Vance International, DynCorp International, and MVM Inc.

Persons under his protection at Vance International have included several members of the Royal Family of the Kingdom of Saudi Arabia, the Royal family of Qatar and a wide variety of corporate executives, celebrities and their families. As a Detail Leader he supervised the development of new agents in the field. As a team leader for DynaCorp he was assigned to a Department of State detail based at the US Embassy in Tel Aviv, Israel. His team provided protective services to Foreign Service Officers and USAID personnel throughout the Gaza Strip and the West Bank. He served as Operations Coordinator, Team Leader and Team Member for MVM, Inc. on a multi-million dollar Department of Defense project operating in Iraq and Afghanistan.

Michael hand selects his team members from an extensive network of professionals and years of experience based upon his assessment with each client. His global military, special operations, close protection and training experience is unmatched in the industry.

A TOTAL RISK MANAGEMENT APPROACH

Peak believes in a total risk management approach with the services and solutions in order to protect our clients. Peak's model is centered around the client. Each client's needs are different as well as the solutions we provide. However, Peak continues to stress the total risk management model ongoing with every relationship. Our entire organization, from executive management on down, has instilled a "CLIENT FIRST" mentality and attitude with all aspects of our operations and services.

No two close protection details are the same. Each client requires a completely unique plan that is tailored to their specific needs.

The mantra is simple: Professionalism. In every aspect of our protection services.

We believe that personal protection should encompass more than a presence. Our personnel are trained to be interactive facilitators; to professionally ensure that all aspects of the client's protection and security are addressed. Our attention to detail ensures that the principal is neither embarrassed nor inconvenienced.

Employing personal protection provides more than physical protection from harm. An effective protection detail will ultimately maximize the principal's time. By either facilitating travel arrangements to and from an airport or confirming a destination's address to avoid delay, the benefits of our services are invaluable.

We set the bar for protection services by maintaining the highest level of confidentiality.

Our Special Operations Professionals

Having the right personnel is what sets great companies apart from the rest of the pack. At Peak we recognize that:

“you are only as strong as your weakest link”

Peak is committed to changing the image of contract security professionals. Candidates must meet the following minimum requirements for consideration as a Special Operations Team Member:

- Above average inter-personal communications skills

Peak's Special Operations Personnel must meet additional training criteria to be a part of our elite team. We set the standards high and keep them there. Specialized training includes:

- Risk Identification and Avoidance Techniques
- Operations Planning and Management
- Aggression Detection Techniques
- Travel Arrangement Facilitation
- Advance Security Due Diligence and Preparation
- Defensive Driving Techniques
- Emergency Medical Response

- Surveillance Detection
- CQB Firearms Techniques
- Crisis Management
- Verbal De-Escalation Tactics

Additional International Protection Services

Maritime Escort Security Services

Peak has the capabilities to station a team of security professionals aboard ship during deployment or on specific voyages depending on the threat level faced. We provide well trained professionals aboard the vessel with force protection as their primary role. Their mandate is to see that the crew and the asset are protected during transit and arrive at the intended destination(s) as scheduled.

International Combat Zone Escort Security Services

Peak also has the capabilities to provide security escort services to in conflict combat zones internationally. Our professionals have extensive experience with providing security in these hot zones. We can provide the safety and security needed to travel and conduct business or personal affairs in these high risk/high threat locations.
